

This is a newsletter about newsletters. Print or electronic, weekly or once in a while, a newsletter is a great way to see what other animal lovers are doing. And newsletters for hundreds of animal organizations are just a click away in the Helping State-by-State section of AmericaHelpsAnimals.com

Once a week we grab a cup of coffee, sit back and read newsletters with names like What's Hop'i'ning, Mid-Week Mews and Trunklines. We watch the ferret cam, find out how to do things like care for a box turtle or bid in a "Raise Your Paw" auction. And best of all we read hundreds of "happy tail" endings for dogs, cats, birds, boa constrictors, hamsters, rats, bats, horses and every other critter on earth that people have organized to help.

Newsletters also let people know how to adopt a pet, make a donation, become a volunteer or provide the goodies on a rescue organization's wish list. In short, newsletters make you feel good about being a link in the chain of love that joins all 50 states.

Go to www.AmericaHelpsAnimals.com and sign up for newsletters that interest you. You may find an idea you can use or get inspired to write a newsletter of your own.

Thanks to all of you for being part of the America Helps Animals community. And keep telling us about all you do for animals and forwarding our newsletter and website to your animal loving friends.
